Subject: Updated Proposal and Answers to Your Questions
Attachments: jeremy_tar_2questions.pdf; municipalities-working-group-renewables-9-13.docx

Hi Jeremy,

I apologize for not getting in touch sooner to thank you for making time to meet with Marvin and me a few weeks ago. It was my intention to email you directly after the Labor Day holiday and then my (paying) business got in the way. I have a very large project I'm working on for UNC TV and Kenan-Flagler developing educational animations. An exciting project, to be sure, but it makes it difficult to do the real work of climate change activism. :)

Anyway, thank you for again making time to meet with us and listen!

You had asked two questions when we met with you about which you were looking for further information. I wanted to follow up with you on this. I emailed a friend and colleague, David Harman, who does a lot of writing on climate change and has a new book coming out later this month called Train Wreck Earth. He has also written extensively on the ACP and the harms it will bring to North Carolina, as well as on the tax question. I have attached a document I prepared but that draws greatly on the work David has put together on this subject. This is not for public distribution as-is, but please feel free to share among decision makers and take from it as you need (it is public knowledge).

I've also attached an updated version of the proposal I wrote for Governor Cooper on creating a Working Group to support municipalities moving to 100% renewable energy. This was further refined based on feedback I received from individuals who served under Governor Hunt. I would value your feedback! I would very much like to get this proposal in the hands of Jenny Owen. Would you prefer to share this with her or should I reach out to her directly? I am new to navigating state administration workings and don't want to misstep.

Also, since we last met, the town's of Clyde and Hillsborough have also adopted a 100% renewable energy by 2050 resolution! Charlotte and Mecklenburg are expected to vote on this later this month and I have reached out to Sig Hutchinson in Wake County.

Thanks again, Jeremy.

Best,
Amanda
